A J-1 Student/Scholar, having been granted an DS- 2019 from an American institution or agency (such as IIE, IREX, etc.) and having obtained a J-1 visa from a U.S. consulate abroad, has three documents that govern her/his stay in the U.S. They are:

- Entry visa
- Admission Stamp
- DS-2019 Form

The entry visa is issued at an American Consulate in a country outside the U.S. These visas are either for single entry to the U.S. or for multiple entries as noted on the visa. There is a time limit for the use of the visa. Sometimes a multiple entry visa is valid for the amount of time expected to complete the program sought, and, sometimes it is only good for one year or less. During this time period a J-1 student/scholar may leave the U.S. and be able to return. If he/she leaves the U.S. after that time period, however, a new visa will be required to return. An important thing to remember is that this visa is an entry visa and, therefore only needed to enter the U.S. from another country. It does not control your stay in U.S.

Upon entry to the U.S., your passport will be stamped with an admission stamp. The admission stamp indicates the date of admission, class of admission (J-1) and admission until date. For J-1 visitors, the admission until is 'D/S', which is an abbreviation for "Duration of Status". Duration of Status means: students may stay in the country until the completion of their program as long as their DS-2019 Form is valid.

If you need to print the electronic I-94 arrival/departure record for verification purposes, it can be obtained from <http://www.dhs.gov/e-verify>

The DS-2019 Form is the document which CSUEB or a sponsoring agency, such as IIE, issues to you when you are admitted. It records information that the U.S. government needs for its records and to grant an entry visa. In item number 3 on the DS-2019 Form there is a place to record the beginning and ending dates of your program. This ending date is important because it is the date by which you must complete your program. Failure to do so may result in termination of your program.

The Housing and Residential Life Office provides off-campus rental listings, landlord and tenant issue information and referrals and consumer information to assist you in making housing decisions. A checking account at a bank is essential in this country. It is convenient and practical to write a check instead of paying cash when you do business. Many business transactions require payment by checks. You may open a checking account in almost any bank in the East Bay area. Sometimes, a small monthly charge and/or a minimum balance is required for a checking account. You should establish an account as soon as possible so that you may have easy access to your money for initial expenses.

You may also wish to open a savings account if you have large amounts of money. A savings account allows you to save and earn interest on your money. There are several types of savings accounts. The three main types are General Savings Account, Money Market Account and Certificates of Deposit (CD's).

Money Market accounts are designed for those with relatively large amounts of money, such as $2,500 or more, to deposit. These accounts sometimes earn a high rate of interest.

A CD is a type of savings account in which the depositor agrees to have funds on deposit for a specific period of time, such as six months. The only fees that are associated with CDs are penalty fees charged for an early withdrawal.

Among the popular banks in California are Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Citicorp, and Chase.
